Shanghai Jewish Refugees Museum

The Shanghai Jewish Refugees Museum consists of the former Ohel Moshe Synagogue and several galleries. The Ohel Moshe Synagogue was established in 1907 by the Ashkenazi community-immigrants from Russia and relocated in 1927 to 82 Ward Road (now Changyang Road). The synagogue became a religious and social center for the Jewish refugees during World War II. In 2007, the Hongkong Shikun People's Government funded the full renovation and the creation of the Shanghai Jewish Refugees Museum. Based on many historical materials and by using modern presentation techniques, the exhibition portrays the experiences of the Jewish refugees in Shanghai in a very interesting and vivid way.
